RE: Library Pandemic Response

The Library continues to monitor new cases and the positivity rate for COVID-19 in Waukesha County. In early December the number of new cases has gone down compared to the mid-November high, but there is concern that cases could rise again two weeks after Thanksgiving. In any case, the number of new cases per day is still above 300.

The positive percentage of tests remains above 30% in Waukesha County.

Currently, the Library plans no service changes with either its reduced hours or reduction in computer use. We continue to work with staff who need quarantine periods due to close contact with other people who have tested positive, or who have themselves tested positive.
